

February 25th 96

My Dearest,

It's seem always to show your little chail off to the tired end of the day. That combination headache that we run between us, just traveled as fast as it could after it left you and reached me this afternoon - I have been in its clutches ever since. -

I have had a pleasant day - receiving many calls

I had an invitation to an art exhibit this afternoon and tickets sent me for the Manuscript Club Concert tonight - neither of which did I attend.

Tomorrow is a very full day - I give a lesson at 9.30 then go and take mine of Madame, then down town to practice with accompanist for the concert - Take lunch with a friend - Mallinson coming in the afternoon - & the theatre in the evening with another friend.

My white dress came today - and so relieved.

Now, sweetheart, must stop young I wonder if you think I am getting too gay - I'd is not taking my heart from you, my own dear - I would give it all up at any moment for me of our blessed home evenings with love for everyone - I wonder what is wrong? my heart is Georgiana's. The course you will say mine, but then you are not an English girl judge - No so much in matters - Dear love
